Campers spend a week at the historic courthouse developing, planning and presenting a tour of the courthouse for younger children. Campers conduct research, prepare a presentation and plan the event for the end of the week. Along the way they learn the basics of character development, voice and diction, storytelling, living history, public speaking and performance. On Friday of the camp they perform the tour for their families and young audience. Creativity, fun and learning are at the forefront in this unique camp experience.
