

Making Way For Books

DeKalb County Public Library Director Barbara Loar, right, discusses plans for the new Wesley Chapel Library, now under construction, with, from left, Mike Kerlin, construction superintendent with Nix-Fowler Contractors, Dr. W.C. Brown, chairman of the DeKalb Library Board of Trustees, and DeKalb Commissioner At-Large Robert Lanier. The 21,000-square-foot facility will fill the need long voiced by late library director Louise Trotti for a library south of I-20, said Mrs. Loar. "It's a handsome library in a handsome location," she said of the facility.

A ground-breaking will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday for the Wesley Chapel branch of the DeKalb County Public Library.

A collection of 85,000 volumes is planned for the library, with 50 percent of these to be available on opening day. It is planned to especially support the informational needs of students and small home-based businesses.

The 21,500 square foot facility, scheduled to open in the fall of 1990, will feature books for all ages, audio and video cassettes, newspapers, magazines, a variety of programming, and a meeting room for community use.
