Ninety-two students at Bob Mathis Elementary School in DeKalb County performed a play, produced and directed by Mrs. Rita Bailey and Mrs. Elethia Washington, "From Africa to Bob Mathis."

These students experienced the roles of 28 outstanding black characters, important not only to America's history but to the history of the world.

Three dance groups, African drummers, and first graders working as slaves in a field were also included in this production.

Reader Of The Year

Kimberly Carter, standing in the foreground, has been named Reader of the Year by the Metropolitan Atlanta Council of the International Reading Association. The award was presented at Georgia State University and was partially based on Kimberly's written answer to the question "What does reading mean to you?" With her are her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Carter, and her sister, LeToiya. Kimberly will be a fourth grader this year at Bob Mathis Elementary School.
